Skye restaurant given top marks by its employees

The Torridon hotel in Wester Ross, the Ceilidh Place in Ullapool and Creelers of Skye have been recognised in the latest Springboard Scotland employee satisfaction survey.

The businesses were voted for by their own employees who gave them the title of a "top employer" within the Highlands and Islands.

The survey was conducted last summer, gathering employee opinion relating to skills development, morale, remuneration, reputation and communication. The winners receive a framed certificate promoting them as a "top employer".

The survey itself is part of the wider "Right Staff" project that Springboard Scotland is currently undertaking.

Springboard Scotland works closely both with the industry and with education sectors to promote the tourism and hospitality industries as a great place to work and is funded by Highlands and Islands Enterprise and the European Social Fund.
